Profile

Independent web developer with one year of practical experience creating complete websites and web applications for businesses. I work across interface design, frontend development, APIs, and deployment to deliver useful, reliable products. My approach is security-minded and includes technical SEO and content structured for search and AI-driven discovery.

Creative and design foundation

I first developed a year of practical 3D experience with Blender. I then spent a year studying design principles, layout, visual hierarchy, and UI/UX through Figma and Framer. This foundation now informs how I structure interfaces, communicate a brand, and build experiences that feel considered in use.

Professional experience

Independent Web Developer

CURRENT

Freelance · 1 year of practical experience

- Build and deliver business websites and web applications from early concept through to deployment-ready handover.
- Create responsive, maintainable interfaces using modern frontend tools, with attention to performance, clarity, and usability.
- Integrate APIs, databases, and external services; build workflow automations, AI automations, and desktop applications when needed.
- Apply practical security awareness, semantic structure, SEO foundations, and GEO-aware content architecture to every project.
